It's such a simple word, but it means so much to all of us at Global Travel International. As the new Director of Member Productivity, I know firsthand how important it is to be made to feel like one of the team. That sense of belonging is something I've enjoyed since coming onboard, and it's something I want to share with all of you as we work together to help you build your business.

During my 19 years in the travel industry, I have spent the last 11 years focused on training and development. I have managed training programs for a variety of companies, including Amadeus, Orbitz and National Car Rental.

I am a Certified Training Director, Master Trainer/Instructor and a member of the American Society of Training & Development and the International Coaches Association. I'm really looking forward to sharing this expertise with you by discovering what your training needs are and how I can best respond to them. My goal is to design well-integrated training programs that deliver results.

My first step toward this goal was to conduct a targeted survey to determine what our Agents want. Thanks to all who participated in the survey – your input was indispensable and I look forward to continuing this dialogue! As a result of your feedback, we've made some important changes to help you succeed.

ASK Katrina

Katrina May
National Trainer, Global Travel International

Q: When passengers purchase air through a cruise line, who makes the flight arrangements with the airlines? When are passengers notified of the flight arrangements and are cabin mates departing from the same city seated together?

— Janice H., Alabama

A: The cruise line assigns flights on the cruise's start and end dates for passengers who purchase air through the line. These flights may require multiple connections or early morning departures and, though it is unlikely, passengers booked together may be seated apart or even booked on different flights. Passengers will be informed of their flight arrangements when they receive their cruise documents, but a GTI service agent can provide this information earlier, starting about 30 days before departure.

Travelers seeking more control over their arrangements can customize their flights, travel dates and carrier by paying a non-refundable fee of $50-$75 per person, depending on the cruise line and whether the flight is domestic or international. Additional airline charges and restrictions may apply.

Cruise lines usually make air arrangements once the booking is paid in full, so it is best to submit customization requests before sending final payment; due to the added complexity of booking air for groups, travelers sailing as part of a group will need to submit their requests even earlier than this. Keep in mind that opting for custom air arrangements will forfeit any complimentary features that may have been available, such as ground transfers and hotel stays. Complete details on the cruise line's air policies can be found in their brochure, but remember that policies and fees are subject to change.

Savvy Saving: Looking for the best cruise rates? Travel when the kids are in school and prices drop – usually from late August through February – and avoid peak periods such as holidays, spring break and summer. Whenever you decide to cruise, booking early is still the best way to save, as the increasing popularity of cruising is making last-minute discounts scarcer.

Savvy Selling: Love the arts? Combine your personal passion and your travel business by partnering with your favorite dance company, art museum or music ensemble to coordinate a fundraising cruise. Including onboard performances, workshops and meet-and-greet sessions with the artists will make for a successful event for you and the organization.

Beauty and the Beach

Bermuda is treasured among the well traveled for many reasons. Blessed with world-class shopping, a slate of interesting historic attractions and a postcard-perfect setting studded with lush vegetation and pretty pastel buildings, the island also is an idyllic tropical paradise of pink sands and crystalline waters. Following is a sampling of some of Bermuda's celebrated public beaches.

Astwood Cove, Warwick Parish: Its secluded location keeps the madding crowds away from this scenic South Shore strand, which is just how savvy beachgoers like it.

Elbow Beach, Paget Parish: One of the most popular beaches on Bermuda, this lengthy strand is ideal for swimming, thanks to the surrounding coral reefs that offer protection from the ocean waves.

Horseshoe Bay Beach, Southampton Parish: This renowned strip is the quintessential Bermudian beach, with sparkling pink sands and an array of facilities and watersports rentals.

John Smith's Bay, Smith's Parish: Families appreciate the facilities and lifeguard service during the summer, but beach-lovers come here for the wide beach and salmon-colored sands.

Shelley Bay Beach, Hamilton Parish: This is another of the island's less crowded strands, and the shallow, placid water and fringe of leafy trees make it especially family-friendly.

Tobacco Bay Beach, St. George's Parish: The craggy rocks jutting out of the water are a prime gathering spot for a variety of marine life, making this a popular site for snorkeling; facilities and rentals are available.

Call of the Wild

Vancouver may be known for its urban appeal, but this waterfront city also has a wild side. Situated near the Pacific Ocean and commanding mountain ranges, the city is a paradise for active vacationers, nature lovers and even extreme-sports enthusiasts.

Winter Sports

You don't have to go far from town to enjoy wintry sports — Grouse Mountain offers snowboarding, ice skating and 25 downhill runs just 15 minutes from downtown, and West Vancouver's Cypress Mountain has dozens of downhill slopes, cross-country ski facilities, snowshoe trails and an exhilarating snow tubing track.

Water Sports

When you're ready to explore the briny deep above or below the surface, look no further than the sparkling blue Pacific. Scuba diving in the local bays and inlets is a popular — albeit chilly — pastime, and sea kayaking also is common, thanks to the striking coastal landscape and generally calm conditions. Whale-watching excursions afford opportunities to view whales, dolphins, seals and other sea creatures in their natural habitat.

Adventure Sports

Get your adrenalin pumping with a white-water rafting trip through class III and IV rapids on the Chilliwack, Elaho or Squamish rivers; a rock-climbing expedition on the Squamish Chief or other local mountains; or snowmobiling along the wintry trails of the Whistler/Blackcomb Mountain region just 75 miles north of the city.
